Audibility is crucial in meeting rooms - particularly in a world where video conferencing is becoming ever more prevalent.

Fit-out experts Maris knew this would be the case when designing the perfect meeting room at the new London-based headquarters for global business intelligence specialists, CRU. That's why they approached Creatif.

To complement the clean, minimalist design of the space, Creatif installed a number of ReSound acoustic panels to sit flush with the ceiling and around the main media unit.

The end result is an acoustically optimised space that hasn't had to compromise on visual appeal.
